THE SOUTHWESTERN OKLAHOMA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The Southwestern Oklahoma Historical Society was founded as a non-profit organization on April 20, 1964 with a Charter to preserve and perpetuate the history of the region. Through the years, the Society has been widely recognized for its accomplishments in preserving the heritage of Southwest Oklahoma.

SOUTHWESTERN

Nameless individuals from the past have left their footprints in the soil of southwest Oklahoma. Great and famous men and women, made their homes in the sometimes hostile territory north of the Red River, and east of the Texas panhandle.

The stories of these individuals are revealed in the journal, Prairie Lore, published each Spring and Fall by the Southwestern Oklahoma Historical Society. Each issue contains 10-12 stories written by as many authors. Subjects are as varied as an old one-room school, a family history, or an Indian legend. You never know from one issue to the next what gems of history will be found within the pages. Both the famous, and the obscure; from Comanche Chief Quanah Parker (Pictured below), to a 1903 tornado in Ninnekah, I.T.—are revealed in this publication.

OKLAHOMA HISTORICAL

Old Post Chapel at Fort Sill, I.T. in 1896.

The Southwestern Oklahoma Historical Society records and documents the history of this area of Oklahoma. New material is always needed for publication from members and non-members alike, which will preserve the experiences of individuals from all walks of life.

Research aids have been compiled, and we do have Indexes available for Prairie Lore from 1964—2005. You can inquire about it by emailing us at: PrairieLore1901@gmail.com. The Index is also available on our website at <http://www.SWOKHS.org>.

If you have an interest in the kind of history described in this brochure, please take this opportunity to join the Southwestern Oklahoma Historical Society today!
